

PION Group AB invests further in Technology Consulting and starts the subsidiary QRIOUS Technology AB

PION Group's new subsidiary QRIOUS Technology AB will broaden and deepen the consulting business within PION Group's existing consulting business in Stockholm. The focus will be on offering engineers with expert competence in built-in systems and product development to tech companies in the Stockholm region.

The business unit will be led by Jonny Tuominen, who has solid experience in establishing operations within the consulting industry and business development.

"There are great opportunities for us to grow and take market share as we see a great demand from product companies for expert competence, both in the form of resource consultants and larger overall commitments in mechanics, electronics and system development. "We will offer consulting services within the entire product life cycle and help our customers succeed in their projects," says Jonny Tuominen CEO of QRIOUS Technology AB and continues, "QRIOUS Technology will complement PION Group's offering in technology consulting, as we with QRIOUS IT, QRIOUS Life Science & Engineering and QRIOUS Minds Insights have fantastic opportunities to help our customers find the right consultant for the right assignment in all technology areas - always".
